

A photograph of a forest. In the foreground, a large, dark, fallen tree trunk lies horizontally across the frame. The trunk is thick and has a rough, textured bark. To the left of the trunk, a standing tree trunk is visible, showing a dark, charred or heavily textured bark. The ground is covered with green grass and various small plants. In the background, a dense forest of birch trees with white bark and green foliage is visible. The sky is overcast and grey.
